What's the difference between at the end and by the end ... The phrase "at the end" tells us that something happened during the same time as the end, or during the ending of something (such as a story or an event). The phrase "by the end" tells us that something happened before the end, or that something finished happening before the ending of something. Below are some examples showing the difference. grammar - At, by, in the end of this week - English ... By the end of the week means you will have completed it by then. At the end of the week means you intend to start reading it then. The problem with the grammaticality is the use of the present progressive, when it seems you need the future. Ideally you need to say: I will read it by/at the end of this week.
